

When along about 11 o'clock one of these fine spring mornings you encounter a friend dressed in his best pair of pants and a sports jacket and he's standing at the curb waiting for another friend with an automobile and he's wearing a far-away look and you smell the fragrance of hay and hear the rustle of oats and about that time the car rolls up and whisks 'em away — that, dear reader, is proof positive that a couple of local gentry are off to Hot Springs' Oak-lawn race.

Storse-betting is not one of my vices, but bending an ear on what happens to those who go to Oak-lawn is. I hear Hope has some rapid calculators. Latest tale is the one about a Hope man who bought a variety of 22 pasteboards this week and when a late-arriving friend fancied a particular horse and offered him $20 for the $2 ticket he shouted, "Sold!" Then the horse, an outrageous long-shot, came home and paid $97.50!

This has nothing to do with front-running horses, unless you chose to believe that Hope's parking meters have a certain resemblance to hitching-posts. Anyway, Policeman Ward was across the street from our office the other day tending to a meter complaint. This particular meter had developed the nasty habit of accepting a customer's 5-cent piece and then giving up only 12 minutes instead of the legal hour.

One theory is, the overworked meter suddenly went off its rocker and imagined itself to be a pair-mutual machine. Another possibility is that it developed indigestion from swallowing a slug — of metal, that is. And then of course there is the true explanation . . . that the darn thing had run down and its spring needed to be cranked again, which I believe, was the occasion of Mr. Ward's emergency visit, carrying the winding key.

If you go down to the Saenger theater some night and find the house full of FBI men I'll prepare you with an advance explanation. Monday night I sat behind a Hope man and his wife, and they confided to me that they had brought their own popcorn from home. Theater men take a dim view of a sort of enterprise. Bring your home movie projector, if you must. Fetch your record-player, if that's the kind of music you must hear. But no home-popped popcorn, please. Theater men aren't movie mongers nowadays; they're popcorn kings, and proud of it. They've even rewritten the Rubiyat, and now its kick line reads: "Take the crackle and let the screen credit go."

Yes, sir, it'll be news in Wall Street, and they'll be calling on the FBI, if the public even starts popping and transporting its own corn. In a way, of course, it would be poetic justice. I was shocked the first time I found "corn" selling popcorn in movie houses. After a while I was reconciled. Finally I started buying the stuff myself. Now the theaters are a business built not around a film monopoly but another variety of corn anybody can pop.

But the theater popper still has the edge for my money — the corn it turns out is hot.

Specialist Describes Heart Surgery

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (UP) — A Boston surgeon today described a strikingly simple heart surgical technique that has enabled him to open up and work inside the human heart while its escaping blood is trapped and held in a rubber "well."

Dr. Robert H. Gross reported he has kept a heart open as long as 2 hours and five minutes while patching or sewing up holes in a main blood chamber.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, he told how the operation was used on seven children suffering from inter-auricular septal defects, a reasonably common congenital heart disorder. Four of the children later died.

In a normal heart, a wall separates the left and right auricles — the blood chambers that receive the return flow of blood from the veins. In these cases, however, the children were born with large, or small openings in the wall. This leakage greatly increased the amount of blood flowing through the right side of the heart, presenting the threat of heart failure and death.

Death Claims Joe Stalin

Body to Lie in State Pending Funeral Plans

MOSCOW (UP) — Moscow's millions swarmed to the Trade Union Building in the center of the city today to view the body of Josef Stalin as it lay in state awaiting the greatest funeral in Russian history.

The streets were black with sorrowful people, weeping and murmuring prayers. They stretched in lines two miles long, 50 abreast, awaiting their chance to honor the man who died at 9:50 p. m. yesterday after leading them for 29 years.

Stalin's body was taken from the grim walled Kremlin, where he died in his four-room apartment with members of his family and the government round his bed, to the great Hall of Columns of the Trade Union Building five minutes' walk away.

There was no hint as to who would succeed this man, who led the Soviet Union's 200 million people.

Jury Out on Hetenyi Slaying Case

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP) — The marathon jury discussion in the third murder trial of Rev. George P. Hetenyi resumed today after the jury of 11 men and one woman spent a second night in dormitory facilities at the local jail.

After 9 hours and 25 minutes of discussion in the past two days, the jurors apparently were no nearer a decision whether the 43-year-old Amherst, N. C., Episcopal supply minister shot his pretty young wife, Jean, four years ago.

Supreme Court Justice Earle C. Bastow recessed court at 11:15 p. m. after the jurors had deliberated continuously since lunch time.

Two other juries previously have found Hetenyi guilty of shooting his wife and throwing her body in the Genesee River. Each of those juries deliberated no more than six hours before bringing in convictions — both reversed on technical grounds.

A suicide angle came to light for the first time in this trial. Hetenyi's mother, 73-year-old Mrs. Caroline Hetenyi testified her daughter Jean shot herself.

Jean Hetenyi's nude body was found floating in the Genesee River near Rochester, N. Y., in April, 1949.

Coalition Kills Bauxite Tax Proposal

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The proposed increase in severance taxes on bauxite folded in defeat before a powerful business-labor coalition in the Senate yesterday. There never was a vote on the bill.

Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock who told the senators, "I represent the aluminum industry." I want approval of two amendments that, (1) put off any bauxite tax boost for at least two years; (2) boost the tax at the current rate of 10 percent.

Measure of Man's Business Success Is Not Salary But Amount of Expense Account

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (UP) — The measure of a man's business success today isn't the size of his salary — it's how big an expense account he draws.

The expense account is a wonderfully flexible instrument, the passport into a golden world of free-spending splendor.

"An expense account beats a paycheck because you don't have to explain it to Uncle Sam," says the lucky holder of one. "And the company doesn't ask too many questions about where the money goes — as they are sure to do in business."

"Why should they holler? Every dollar you spend on expenses actually costs them only 18 cents. The rest would go to the government anyway under the excess profits tax."

The joint expense account is not

Girl Scouts to Observe 41st Anniversary

Girl Scouts of America will observe their 41st anniversary during the week of March 7-12 and a special program has been arranged by local scouts.

There are two Brownie and five Girl Scout troops in Hope. A special program has been arranged for 9:30 a. m. Saturday and will be broadcast over station KXAR.

Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 a tea and openhouse will be held at the "Little House" in Park Park during which time the girls will entertain their parents and friends.

Recommend Tax Plan Be Placed Before People

By RAY STEPHENS

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Gov. Francis Cherry's comprehensive tax revision proposal cleared its first hurdle last night when a joint legislative committee recommended that the Legislature submit it to a vote by the people.

More than 100 persons turned out for the 3-hour hearing preceding the vote on the governor's proposal by the Joint Constitutional Amendments Committee. The committee also recommended four other proposed amendments. The Legislature may select only three to be placed on the ballot.

Cherry's tax revision plan — which the governor calls one of the most important parts of his program — was criticized as an effort to raise property taxes to all-time highs, and praised as a means for Arkansas to save itself.

Leffel Gentry, the Little Rock lawyer who managed Cherry's campaign, explained the bill, and duelled with most of its opponents in the lengthy session.

Gentry said the bill has five main provisions (1) to exclude the state from the property tax field; (2) to place the tax on the property tax; (3) to place the tax on the property tax; (4) to place the tax on the property tax; (5) to place the tax on the property tax.

Legislative Council Is Named

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The House yesterday named its members of the Arkansas Legislative Council for the next two years.

The Senate had been scheduled to take similar action, but postponed making its selection because of more pressing business. The Council serves an interim research and budgeting group. It has no power to make laws, but often proposed legislation.

Since Gov. Cherry's fiscal code bill has become law, the Council also will have the duty of supervising post-auditing of expenditures a legislative function under the measure.

The Senate tried to set up a separate committee for this task, but the House rejected the plan, and left the job up to the council.

Gov. Cherry named as his one representative on the Council Rep. Ernest Havemann, who says:

"In cities like New York, Washington and Chicago it is safe to say that at any given moment well over half of all the people in the best hotels, the best nightclubs and the best restaurants are charging the bill to their companies, which in turn are charging it to the government in the form of tax deduction."

Clarification of Ammunition Reports Asked

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee today called on top Pentagon officials to clear up the "confusing and conflicting" reports as to ammunition supplies for Korea.

From Gen. James A. Van Fleet, the committee heard there were serious ammunition shortages — even of hand grenades — during the whole time he was in Korea. But other military men deplored both the extent and nature of shortages.

In this situation, Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass.) announced that the Armed Services Committee is asking that Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, and civilian military chiefs come before it next Tuesday at 10 a. m.

Saltonstall said the committee wants the officials "to place the rather confusing and conflicting views which have been laid before us in some sort of perspective, which we can understand, and which will make for a sensible and reasonable comprehension of what I must admit, is at this moment a most disturbing and unexpected set of circumstances."

Saltonstall's statement was issued as the committee went into another closed door session with Van Fleet, retiring commander of the 8th Army in Korea.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet has booted the Army's lid of secrecy off the high-tech talk of ammunition shortages in Korea — and the alarm reverberated in Congress today.

"The Senate's armed services committee wants to know if military planners are responsible for shortages which, according to Van Fleet, have included even hand grenades needed for close-in mountain fighting."

However, the Army's chief of information, Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks, told newsmen later Pentagon records showed no hand grenades shortages in Far East despatches. Parks did not discount possible local shortages "due to distribution difficulties," but said there were enough grenades stocked to last 90 days under normal conditions.

At the peak of fighting last fall, Parks said, Allied artillery outfired the Reds five to one.

One senator, who asked that his name not be used, quoted Van Fleet as saying shortages have been felt for the past 22 months and will not be entirely wiped out until some time this summer.

Van Fleet's testimony yesterday — called "shocking" by two lawmakers — captures so much interest that he was asked to appear again today before the Senate's armed services and appropriations committees.

Dierks Woman Undergoes Tests

TEKARKANA (UP) — Mrs. Opal Shimmington, the 49-year-old central figure in the bizarre $285,000 Bank of Dierks shortage, was to be released from a Fort Worth, Tex., hospital today.

Mrs. Shimmington was committed to the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital in Fort Worth for a 30-day mental test by Federal Judge Harry Lemley last Feb. 6. She is under bond while auditors and the FBI investigate the bank shortage and hunt for the money. The shortage was discovered last Aug. 10. Mrs. Shimmington had been cashier of the bank for 30 years. She admitted falsifying accounts but insisted she did not get any money.

Boyd Tackett, attorney for Mrs. Shimmington, said she would be released from the hospital today to return home. He said he understood that hospital authorities would make their report on his client's mental condition direct to Judge Lemley.

News Briefs

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Rep. Eugene Hampton of Lee County who was a sponsor of the 1935 horse racing law today proposed that it be repealed.

Hampton said he was tired of "them trying to stuff a track we don't want down our throats in Eastern Arkansas."

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The House today made a special order of business for Monday a bill which would levy a tax of five per cent of market value on bauxite, oil, coal, natural gas and other "natural resources."

Presently, the taxes vary but generally are on a per ton basis rather than a percentage basis.

The special order gave clear indication of another fight over severance taxes — as such levies for the privilege of "serving" the state's resources are known.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Gov. Francis Cherry said at this morning's news conference today that when he lays his tax revision program on the line in the general election it will be "a fight between the taxpayers and the tax dodgers."

LONOKE (UP) — Prosecutor J. B. Reed said today that James W. Head is to be committed to the State (mental) Hospital at Little Rock indefinitely.

He said Circuit Judge J. W. Waggoner received a report from hospital authorities this morning stating that Head was "unable to participate or cooperate rationally in his own defense."

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei V. Vishinsky made a last minute appearance at the United Nations today and delivered a eulogy of Russian Premier Josef Stalin before leaving to attend Stalin's funeral.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A bill to place another 3 percent excess tax on liquor, with a 3 per cent cut in the wholesale markup on alcoholic beverages, to finance state county and district livestock shows was rejected by the Senate today.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A bill to exempt feed, seed and fertilizer from the state 2 per cent sales tax was approved by the Senate today.

The bill, which has passed the House, was sought mainly by livestock farmers and representatives of northwest Arkansas' vast poultry industry.

Educator Talks at Conference

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Mrs. Mattie Lloyd Wooten of Texas State College for Women, Denton, Tex., addressed the 2nd annual Southwest Area Council on Family Relations here today.

Mrs. Wooten reported to delegates from the educational, religious and social work fields from five states on the recent National Council meeting at Rutgers University.

Dr. Hazel L. Ingersoll of Oklahoma A&M, led a discussion on pre-college preparation for family life.

Representatives from Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Mississippi are attending the 2-day meeting.

Russia Warns Enemies Not to Try Anything; U.S. Seeks Advantage

Red Crisis at Hand in Fight for Power

By W. A. YSER

LONDON (UP) — Russia warned her enemies today not to try to take advantage of the crisis caused by Josef Stalin's death.

A few hours after Stalin died Radio Moscow boomed this warning around the world: "The Soviet people know that the defense capacity and the might of the Soviet Union, that the party is in every way strengthening the Soviet Army, navy and intelligence organs with the view to constantly raising our preparedness for a decisive rebuttal to any aggressor."

Observers here agreed that Stalin's death had plunged Russia into her worst crisis since the German armies of World War II knocked at the gates of Moscow. The fight for Stalin's mantle may already be under way, but it will not be resolved for some time.

Many of the persons who may be involved in the struggle are now being watched by the Soviet government.

Bloody Tries by Chinese Beaten Off

By STAN CARTER

SEOUL (UP) — Determined South Korean soldiers today bent off five bloody Communist counterattacks and held grimly to a newly won, shell-seared knob on Sniper Ridge on the Korean Central Front.

Chinese Red assaults, supported by stinging artillery and mortar fire, forced the South Koreans off the outpost briefly, but they later stormed back in a bitter hand-to-hand battle.

Allied soldiers made no effort to hide the fact that the death of Russian Premier Josef Stalin — like the death of any Communist — was good news to them. But few thought it would have any effect on life in the bunkers of the bleak battlefield.

In the air, eight U. S. B-29 Superfortresses roared out scattered Red anti-aircraft fire and dumped 80 tons of bombs on Communist troop and supply centers along the battle front. Crew men reported good results.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force said two-engine B-29 bombers, hampered by overcast skies, destroyed 95 Red trucks, one locomotive and 12 boxcars last night. Allied fighters destroyed 35 more boxcars in early morning raids.

Bitter, small-scale ground action flared all along the front today. The U. S. Eighth Army reported dozens of Reds killed in a patrol clash.

This is the voice of fear. The party knew Stalin was old. That he was bound to die, but the fact of his death still is a profound shock, not only to the politicians running the government, but to the entire nation. And such a shock can lead to dire consequences.

In losing Stalin, the Communist party lost its symbol of unassailable power. Much as he may have tried to indicate his successor, the very act of his dying Stalin has removed the greatest barrier to challenging the supreme power of clashes.

Uncertainty, Fear Spread in Europe

By PHIL CLARKE

LONDON (UP) — Western Europe reacted with fear and uncertainty to the news today that Stalin is dead.

Except for loyal Communists, there was no shedding of tears. But neither was there jubilation.

Most Europeans took the news grimly, with only a few expressions of hope for a letup in the cold war.

The biggest worry expressed anywhere was that the new ruler or rulers of Russia might scrap Stalin's wary cold war policies and possibly plunge the world into a shooting conflict.

Western Diplomats studying the official death announcement found scant clues as to who takes over now.

But the announcement, signed by the Central Committee of the Communist party, the USSR Council of Ministers and the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet — Russia's three most powerful bodies — made it clear there is no new bid for friendship with the West.

The announcement promised a continued buildup of the Soviet Army, navy and intelligence services to deal "a decisive rebuttal to any aggressor."

It added pledges of friendship with China and other Communist satellites and with workers of capitalist and colonial countries.

Red Army May Decide New Soviet Leader

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Foreign News Analyst

Joseph Stalin's death apparently has delivered the leadership of the Soviet Communist party into a state of cold fear. It may drive the vast nation toward a virtual military dictatorship.

The party and state apparatuses, in announcing the death of Stalin, declared the party's most important task would be the indoctrination of all workers in high political vigilance against "internal and foreign enemies of the USSR."

This is the voice of fear. The party knew Stalin was old. That he was bound to die, but the fact of his death still is a profound shock, not only to the politicians running the government, but to the entire nation. And such a shock can lead to dire consequences.

Administration to Capitalize on Stalin's Death

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Eisenhower administration launches a top secret psychological warfare offensive against communism today in an effort to capitalize on Stalin's death.

High-ranking administration sources revealed the plan was whipped into shape immediately after Moscow announced that Stalin was gravely ill and now is "under way."

These sources guarded details of the project. But they revealed it is designed to "exploit" the confusion and chaos sure to grip the Reds as a result of the passing of "Mr. Communism." One of the chief aims is to drive a wedge between the satellites in eastern Europe and Asia and Moscow.

President Eisenhower and his cabinet planned an urgent review of key U. S. domestic and foreign policy programs to prepare a nation for "any eventualities" that might flow from Stalin's death.

Even without a review, the clear historic shift in Russian power would have major implications on the nations' political and economic relations.

Businessmen Visiting Hope Industries

Industrial Recognition program of the Retail Merchants Association got off to a good start this week.

Fifteen businessmen assembled at the Chamber of Commerce office before making the first in a series of tours to "Hope Industries."

Present plans include weekly visits to manufacturing plants and all plants have been visited. The program has a two-fold purpose to exhibit the interest and appreciation of the Retail Merchants Association of Hope Industries and to give businessmen of Hope a little more information on the industries which employ a good number of their customers.

The tour has been to May's Bakery and the Southwest Wire Products Company. Stories about these two companies appeared in The Star. Next week the tour will visit two more of the industries that help to make Hope what it is today. These men who make the tour were highly pleased with what they saw and heard, and that there are others who would enjoy these visits.

Decontrol Costs Family $20 Yearly

By MAUREEN OOTHLIN

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration's price decontrol program, it is going to cost the average American family about $20 during the next 12 months, it was estimated today.

In the next 12 months, they said, price increases on items already decontrolled should cost consumers almost $1,000,000,000. That's about one half of one per cent of the $200,000,000,000 now in the federal treasury.

President Eisenhower said yesterday he is gratified to see that the decontrol program has brought little evidence of anyone trying to gouge consumers or to pass up prices. He said the program is a result of yesterday's decontrol order.

Yesterday's action left only coffee, beer, hot water heaters, garbage disposal units, hardware items and home-heating fuel oil to be decontrolled between now and April 30. These represent less than one per cent of the items in the government's cost-of-living index.

In the consumer field, the government yesterday decontrolled a host of automobiles, bread, laundry and dry-cleaning services, and all other major home appliances, such as refrigerators and stoves.

sign and domestic. Among other things, it was expected to:

1. Diminish the chances for any early end in defense spending, budget balancing or tax reduction.

The administration will be required to adopt a "go slow" policy until it detects — along with U. S. Allies — the future course of Soviet policies.

2. Require a continued defense buildup and foreign aid. A high-ranking military officer voiced the fear that Stalin's successor, unlike Stalin, might underestimate America's productive genius and atomic power and touch off World War III.

3. Assure early and overwhelming Senate approval of Soviet expert Charles E. Bohlen to be American ambassador to Moscow during the current critical period.

4. Bring a moratorium on any drastic military or diplomatic moves that might drive warring Soviet leaders together and unite the Russian people behind them.

The House has passed the tax increase bill, authorized by Rep. Jack C. Oakes of Woodruff County, and Gov. Francis Cherry had put himself on record as favoring it. It would have raised the tax to a minimum of 25 cents and a maximum of $1.25 per ton depending on grade. The revenue would have been set aside for the State Apportionment Fund, the State Hospital, the Blind and Deaf Schools, the University of Arkansas and seven state supported colleges.

The Senate also defeated a bill to require that Arkansas' anti-strike violence law be amended to include management as well as labor in its felony provisions.

A bill by Sen. Fagan to allow Arkansas taxpayers to deduct their federal income tax payments from their state income tax returns was defeated, 15-11.

The House passed, 75-15, a new "Anti Law" after a twice-interrupted filibuster by Rep. Paul Van Dalsen of Perry county had ended.

Late in the day the House passed 80, its bill to appropriate $0 million dollars yearly for the Education Department.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
CAROL was no longer cool; she was hot with anger as she heard Derek tell of what Thelma had accused her and Jason. She wished she had Thelma facing her at that moment. Does or no boss, job or no job, she would have told her just what she thought of her.

"I told her that once Jason had come up to my flat," she kept her voice carefully controlled. "He drove me home one night in the rain and came up and smoked a cigarette. Maybe two. But that was all."

"That was all?" he exclaimed incredulously.
She nodded. "I hadn't seen him for months until that night of the staff dance."

"But—but the guy's in love with you! He said as much that night on the Mary. Why hadn't you seen him in the interval?"

Carol bit her lip. "He said that when his uncle dismissed him he thought he'd better keep away from everyone connected with the store," she evaded.

"He neglected that," she said. "I thought it might be your job, and at the time he hadn't anything to offer you. He hasn't now, as far as I can gather."

"No, I suppose not." But again an angry color crept into her cheeks.
He had pushed back his chair and was pacing the floor in long, nervous strides.

"I wish I'd known this before—before," he stopped and ended in a maimed way. "I'd made a fool of myself, Carol."

She poured herself another cup of coffee; it was cold, but to drink it gave her something to do.
"Why have you told me all this about yourself and Mrs. Felton?" she asked finally. "Can I do?"

He dropped again into the seat facing her.
"Betty Ann advised me to tell you. Betty Ann said you had what she calls horse sense. She says she liked you as much as any girl she's met."

"I like her too," Carol murmured.
He nodded. "What do you think I ought to do?"

"You couldn't leave it as it is for a while? Try to forget it?"
He made a faint grimace.
"Thelma wouldn't stand for that. She didn't want me to come down here. Or if I had to come, she said

Widow Tells Gruesome Horror Tale

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — A 90-pound widow shocked a criminal court jury yesterday with a hair-raising account of torture, starvation and fantastic indignities.

Mrs. Bessie Barksdale, 60, testified against Miss Rosalie Rice, 40, a 325-pound operator of a small furniture store here who is charged with assault with intent to murder in the first degree.

The slight widow, formerly postmaster at Blaine, Miss., for 23 years, said she was beaten, starved, cheated of $3,000, forced to drink "furniture turpentine" and chew on filthy rags.

Mrs. Barksdale said she was employed as a housekeeper for seven months by the defendant and was afraid to leave her. On cross-examination she admitted she often was sent on outside errands.

"But I believed she would kill me like she said she would if I tried to leave," she said. "And I kept hoping I would get back my money she made me give her."

Miss Rice denied any mistreatment of the elderly widow. She said Mrs. Barksdale was not employed as her housekeeper, but had begged to be allowed to stay her living quarters in the store.

Police testified Mrs. Barksdale's wrist was broken and her eyes, neck, body and legs badly bruised when they answered the living quarters in answer to complaints from neighbors.

The frail widow said the round woman merchant had mistreated numerous beatings with a heavy walking cane. She partially lost her hearing from being beaten over the head with the cane, she claimed.

And on one occasion, she testified, Miss Rice as punishment for some "imagined misdeed," made her drink a pint of "furniture turpentine."

Mrs. Barksdale said she had filed a $103,000 damage suit against Miss Rice in circuit court.

Pesky Flies
From 120 to 150 eggs at a time are laid by female flies. These eggs hatch into maggots in from 8 to 24 hours and a few days later become flies which will, within two or three weeks, begin laying eggs.

likely that Stalin was already dead.
The official attitude was to assume Soviet policies would go along substantially unchanged and that the U. S. must expect to fight the hot war in the Far East and the cold war elsewhere for an indefinite period.

However, "authorities" recognize that in the long run a change of dictators could profoundly affect Russia's world aims and her methods of seeking to realize them.

They also point out that Stalin has been not only the leader of Soviet communism for 20 years but has grown into a symbol of Community unity and power.

There was speculation here that with his disappearance from the role of active leader any other person would for a long time find it impossible to exercise the same attractions for Stalin's followers.

Votes to Air Condition House

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The House today passed, 75-5, a Senate bill to air condition both legislative chambers and install an electric roll call machine in the Senate chamber.

Cost, estimated at around $100,000, would be met by a special one-half cent a pint tax on liquor.

The House already has an electric roll call.

A Senate bill to allow the Forestry and Parks Commission to issue revenue bonds of an unspecified amount for improvement of state parks was approved by the House.

On reconsideration the House passed a Senate bill it had once defeated to permit the Highway Commission, rather than city council, to designate truck routes through municipalities.

A House bill to extend a retirement system to state employees not now covered was passed.

A Senate bill to extend from one to three years the period a newspaper must have been published to qualify as a legal publication for acceptance of legal advertising was beaten.

The House passed Senate bills to: Tighten laws against unlawful transportation of liquor into dry territories.

Appropriate $13,000 for construction and improvement at the governor's mansion including a fence around the mansion grounds.

Snow, Winds Hit Central Plains

By United Press
Frigid winds and light snow moved into the Central Plains state today, and temperatures around zero were expected in northern Nebraska tonight.

The cold snap reached into Kansas and Missouri, but southern parts of the two states enjoyed mild weather.

The southern two-thirds of the nation from coast to coast was generally clear, while New England and North Dakota had clear to partly cloudy skies.

A bright sun dawned along the West Coast all the way to the Washington border.

Snow flurries and light snow were drifting softly on the extreme southern Great Lakes region.

Temperatures below zero were common early today from northern Minnesota through North Dakota into northwestern Montana. Scattered light snow fell in parts of the region and in the northern Rockies.

International Falls, Minn., and Dickinson, N. D., shivered at seven below before sunrise. Glasgow, Mont., had five below. Chicago was 25 and Key West, Fla., had a low of 75.

have a voice in choosing Stalin's successor are not even in Moscow now. Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky said from New York today, Jacques Duclos, acting leader of the French Communist Party, is looking passage from Paris.

Leaders of the Soviet satellites in Europe are reported to be hurrying to Moscow to attend the Stalin funeral and then stay on to participate in the struggle for power.

As near as can be determined the situation in Moscow is as follows:

1. The men in the Kremlin are concerned about the reaction of the Russian people and have broadened to them an appeal to stand by the Communist Party — "In these sorrowful days all the people of our country are rallying even closer in the great fraternal family of the Communist Party."

2. Anybody who thinks a revolution will break out immediately probably is engaging in wishful thinking. All indications are that the secret police of Lavrenti Beria have full control of the situation.

3. V. M. Molotov, senior vice premier, appears to be in control of the government temporarily, but there is no assurance he will become Stalin's successor. Georgi M. Malenkov, Communist Party secretary and former private secretary of Stalin, seems to have the most likely chance to emerge as the strong man.

4. It may be a month or two before a formal successor to Stalin as premier of the USSR is named. The Supreme Soviet usually assembles between March and May, and that would be a logical time to make the announcement.

5. It is unlikely that there will be any immediate shift in Russian foreign policy. Even if his successor wanted to make some changes, it would take a long time to reorganize the nation's policy. A change in attitude toward Korean War for instance, would have to be carefully negotiated with the Chinese Communists.

WMS Has Special Program at Church
"From Sea to Shining Sea" was the subject of the talks given on Thursday morning by members of the Annie Hoover Circle of the First Baptist with Mrs. Royce Smith as leader as the WMS met in a special Week of Prayer for Home Missions.

Talks were given by Mrs. A. D. Brannon, Mrs. W. L. Thrash, Mrs. S. A. Whitlow, Mrs. Basil York, and Mrs. Harold Porterfield on work in Cuba, Alaska, Canal Zone, and Panama. Each talk was followed by a special prayer for the missionaries on these home mission fields.

"Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet" was sung by Mrs. C. M. Rogers, Jr., and Mrs. A. W. Martin. Continuing the theme of the week, "Symbols of the American Pattern" the program for Thursday was "Our Coins" as the motto on each American coin is "In God We Trust."

The symbol for the program on Tuesday morning was "The Seal" as it appears on our dollar bill.

Members of the Martha Hairston circle, with Mrs. F. M. Horton as program leader, have talks on Negroes, Good Will Centers, Jews, and the Emergency Home in New Orleans. Giving these parts were Mrs. E. C. Sterling, Mrs. Henry Haynes, Mrs. Eva Campbell, Mrs. George Young. Each talk was followed by a special prayer for the workers on these home mission fields.

A special solo "Ole Man River" was then presented. The Annie Arm strong offering is taken each morning as the goal this year is $1,000, 000.

tions. Even a smaller city like Seattle reflects the phenomenon."

The cheerful advantages of a big expense account are obvious to anyone. The tragic side is just as real.

It is an open invitation for a man to live beyond his own means. He finds that his mere signature on a check will let him enter into a glamorous world of free drinks, free food, free theater tickets and other kinds of entertainment. He mixes with celebrities and people of real wealth.

He gets the idea he really belongs in this world, and soon his expense account doesn't cover the tabs he signs. He is in over his head. He spends more money—own—trying to buy a customer's business. Instead of selling him on facts. And the final price too many pay is—alcoholism, marital breakup, loss of job.

But as they disappear, new men with new expense accounts step up to the bar. The ruining effect of entertainment allowances on their men worries top executives, but it is hard for them to draw the line.

Who are the temporary aristocracy of the age of the expense account?

"Anybody who sells anything," is the definition of Totia Shor, noted restaurateur and graduate student of Manhattan night life.

"The big spenders are advertising men, public relations guys, manufacturers, motion picture people, brokers and auto salesmen."

Shor believes that if you picked up money a man on an expense account and shook him nothing would fall out of his pockets but his car keys.

"The big companies are getting more strict about expense accounts now," he said. "They were careless about them for a long time, but realized some guys took advantage of them."

"They were using the dough to court girls friends instead of customers. But generally you find that a guy who abuses his expense account in time abuses himself right out of a job and back into the breadline."

Moralists may decry the expense account evil, but only a business firm is likely to curb it. Everybody who has an expense account says he loses money on it, but he will break into tears if the boss tries to take it away. And no man in business who doesn't have an expense account feels he is really forging ahead until he can cut a few tabs on his firm.

ple for 29 years and called the plays for Communists the world over. But a joint statement from the Communist party and the government called for continuation of such policies as strengthening the nation's armed forces, increased vigilance at home and tighter bonds with Communists abroad.

At this stage there is no prospect of any in the policies Stalin pursued.

This afternoon a motor hearse left the St. Spassky Gate in the Kremlin. While thousands assembled on Red Square to see it, the hearse moved slowly from the Kremlin to the Hall of Columns, bearing Stalin's coffin.

Immense heaps of flowers and wreaths surrounded it. Russians began filing past to gaze for the last time at the man who led them to victory over Nazi Germany. Thousands were in line when the doors opened.

The processions for those wishing to say "Svidaniya" (goodbye) will continue day and night until the funeral. A commission headed by Nikita S. Khrushchev now is working on funeral plans. No date has been announced for the final services nor has there been any word where Stalin is to be buried.

The Hall of Columns is only a few hundred yards from the great mausoleum in Red Square where V. K. Lenin, Stalin's predecessor and the father of Russian Communism, lies embalmed in a glass coffin.

Moscow was cold, windy and unpleasant today, but life went on about as usual. Hundreds still were filing into churches to place candles before icons. There were tears in the eyes of some, some had grim, set faces, many crossed themselves repeatedly.

ments to the original bill, all of which were adopted by the Committee. Some of the amendments merely corrected typographical error in the original draft, but some important changes were made.

The first bill provided that no tax could be levied on clothing or household goods, and this section was cut out. Gentry explained that some taxpayers contribute their share of the property tax solely on these items.

All of section three of the first draft, which authorized the General Assembly to levy the tax on "intangible personal property, livestock, growing timber, minerals and other natural resources" was removed. Gentry said that leaves these items subject to the proposed amendment just as it does real property.

The section allowing appeals from decisions by the Board of Equalization, the 2-man agency which would enforce the law, was re-written to make clear that any individual could take the Board to court, said Gentry.

Most of the discussion on the bill centered around the proposed maximum annual rates set out in the bill. The rates for the county, city and 12 for the school districts.

His Word

The sword of the spirit is the word of God. Eph. 6:17. The cutting word is a two-edged sword; truth cutting through falsehood or the hurting word cutting into innocent hearts. Talking is a terrible responsibility. Words create or crush. Your words are your union card; they put you in the construction crew or the wrecking gang. Words are ambassadors of the mind . . . choose those that will make treaties of peace, not declarations of war. In America there are nearly 300,000 Churches where "His Word" is fed to hungry souls. The word of God is living and active and sharper than any two-edged sword. Jesus offered life to those who would hear His words and believe. You can be sure the best people are church-going people . . . do you go to church?

'Be Reasonable' Rayburn Advises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, starting his 41st year in Congress today, advised his colleagues to be "reasonable" if they want to stay in office a long time.

The 71-year-old dean of the House is "Mr. Democrat" to fellow-members and no one disputes the esteem in which he is held by members of both political parties.

He came to the House 40 years ago yesterday from the Texas district he still represents, and has sought no other office.

"I've never had any ambition to go to the Senate," Rayburn said in an interview. "I love the House of Representatives. I have great faith in it. As long as the House of Representatives stands up to its responsibilities, the country will be safe."
